My Dear Madam

I know M^r

Taylor very well and the circumstance also which induced him to write to the Admiral. A M^{rs} Bevan, wife of a London banker
wished to present

[0002]

me with something
and as M^r Taylor thought that this meant something handsome I mentioned the instrument. But as this was more than two months ago I suspect that he was too sanguine
in his expectations
for I have heard nothing more of it from him since
I shall see him

[0003]

in a day or two and then proceed to get the instrument for myself. & I should like to know if they are to be had in London & where I dont like to be troublesome and hope you will excuse

this

I am Yours Truly
David Livingstone
Mrs. A. Smythe.
